E 次の文章を読み、設問に答えなさい。

(4点×5=20点)

I keep a dog, a small poodle called Spice. He's family to me: I talk to him, he listens. So, when I decided to move from Florida to Colorado, I gave him the news. He seemed to like the idea, *¹wagging his tail, nodding his head. I gave him his favorite food.

The first thing I had to think about was to find the easiest, most comfortable way to travel with Spice. Since I drive a small car, which has no space for much luggage, a 4,000-kilometer car journey alone with a dog didn't seem like a good idea. I decided to have the car sent by truck to Colorado, while Spice and I traveled by airplane. Neither of us knew what we were getting into.

This was our first flight together, and I had a lot to learn about taking an animal on a plane. Spice was required to travel in a *²carrier bag for a dog, and the airline had strict *³size specifications because the bag had to fit under the seat in front of me. Not every dog has the *⁴temperament for this kind of *⁵confinement, but fortunately Spice has good manners, even in difficult situations. He didn't seem to be enjoying it but he didn't say a word.

We were unlucky that we had a two-hour *⁶layover in Chicago. I fully expected to walk Spice around the airport on his leash, stretching our legs until the next plane to Colorado. What I didn't know is that dogs must stay in their carrier even in the airport! I had to carry him in his heavy bag down many long paths to finally reach the outside of the terminal. My *⁷top priority was finding an area covered with grass for a restroom break. By that point, we were both miserable. He was confused and nervous. I was very tired, a small woman carrying a 6.3-kilo dog in a carrier bag through a huge airport.

But we were only halfway done. We still had the hard time of going through the *⁸security gate again, shoes off, Spice in and out of the bag, for the second time that day. Three hours later and we finally reached Denver. Then a shuttle bus for another hour and a half to our *⁹destination, the small city of Fort Collins, our new home. The bus driver was kind and allowed Spice out of the carrier for the ride. Neither of us had eaten all day. Spice had a rest in my lap looking up at me. His eyes were saying something. All I could say was, "I promise, never again." Then I gave him his favorite food.
